The failure of the potato crop, which was the staple food for the Irish peasantry, led to mass starvation, disease, and emigration. It is estimated that over a million people died, and as many as two million emigrated, primarily to America. This period not only caused demographic upheaval but also birthed a profound cultural and psychological trauma. The aftermath of the famine fostered a sense of loss, displacement, and a questioning of Ireland's relationship with its land, economy, and identity.
